

Raising A Stein to Raise Money

Magic Tree Pub and Eatery to host a stein hoist competition to raise money for Making Kids Count

August 7, 2013 – BOARDMAN OHIO – Magic Tree Pub and Eatery, a major sponsor of octoBREWfest, an upcoming craft beer festival in Boardman, will be hosting a weekly stein hoist competition to raise money for Making Kids Count. For just a $1 entry fee per participant, this competition series, set to take place Wednesday evenings at 7pm starting August 14, 2013, will lead up to the main competition happening at octoBREWfest craft beer festival on September 21, 2013. Not only do the proceeds from the weekly stein hoist competitions benefit Making Kids Count, but so do the proceeds from octoBREWfest 2013.

The idea behind the weekly stein hoist competition at Magic Tree is to, in the end, have 1 male and 1 female winner who will proceed to compete against any other willing participants on the day of octoBREWfest. The grand prize for each winner is a 3 foot authentic Samuel Adams stein, filled with $500 cash. For more details regarding the Stein Hoist visit octobrewfest.com or call Holly Grazier at 330.679.8368.

Combining fun and a good cause promotes a great sense of community involvement, which is very important for the owners and team at Magic Tree. "My wife Sandy and I are always looking at ways that we can help local non-profit organizations while promoting the great business of craft beer", states Phill Reda, owner of Magic Tree and Vintage Estate Wine and Beer. "We look forward to hosting this fun event with Samuel Adams at Magic Tree each Wednesday leading up to the beer festival", he concludes.
